All Too Human Bacon Freud

All Too Human celebrates the painters in Britain who strove to represent human figures, their relationships, and their surroundings in the most intimate of ways—and features breathtaking works by Lucian Freud and Francis Bacon alongside rarely seen pieces by contemporaries such as Frank Auerbach and Paula Rego. Despite vast differences in approach and style, the works included all capture the sensuous, immediate, and intense experience of life through the medium of paint.

All Too Human: Bacon, Freud, and a Century of Painting ...

A portrait of Freud by Bacon, which has not been exhibited in public for 50 years, might very well be the star piece of the show. Freud's hairline and pale torso are instantly recognisable, but his face is smashed into a creamy mess. He seems to sidle along a pale green sofa, more monster than man, his legs melted into a single grey mass.

Exhibition Review - All Too Human: Bacon, Freud and a Century of Painting Life at Tate Britain

All Too Human: Bacon. Freud and a Century of Painting Life Tate Britain, 15th March 2018. I love paint. I love painting. I love paintings of people. I love Britain (though I appreciate that is a loaded statement). I love London. I love paintings of London. So, surprise, surprise, I loved this exhibition. Don't listen to the whingeing critics
